The City's USBC department determined that the convection heaters for the addition did not comply with the manufacturer's installation instructions. The owners further appealed to the Review Board.

Interpretations

An interpretation request from the County of Franklin USBC department was considered concerning a policy or procedure for identifying wall bracing on construction documents. After discussion, Mr. Lowe moved that the request was seeking review and approval of a policy as opposed to seeking clarification concerning the wording of a particular provision of the USBC, and as such, no interpretation could be issued. Mr. Lowe further moved that the informal correspondence provided by staff was adequate in addressing the proponents concerns. The motion was seconded by Mr. Crigler and passed unanimously.

Interpretations

An interpretation request from the City of Harrisonburg Fire Department was considered concerning the application of the Virginia Statewide Fire Prevention Code (SFPC) to trailers or panel trucks serving food and utilizing fuel-fired appliances. After discussion, Mr. Oglesby moved to issue the following interpretation, designated as Interpretation No. 4/2006, concerning the use of the term "building" in the definition of "Commercial cooking appliances" in Section 602.1 of the SFPC:

QUESTION: Is a trailer or panel-truck considered to be a building under the SFPC, irrespective of whether it's immobilized or anchored?

ANSWER: No.

The motion was seconded by Mr. Crigler and passed unanimously.

Secretary's Report
